2001 Large-Format Bookings Yearbook

Films and bookings of 2000

The turmoil that the LF film industry has experienced in the past twelve months is not reflected in the statistics we have compiled for this, the third annual LF Bookings Yearbook. With respect to bookings, there were some relatively minor changes in 2000: the length of the average booking held steady, ending the sharp declines of the previous two years; the number of theaters increased, as did the number of films available, although neither number jumped as much as it had in the previous two years; and the average number of films per theater dropped slightly, ending an upward trend of three years.

But in general, the bookings patterns of the past year show little dramatic change, positive or negative.

It might be a different story if we were able to report accurate attendance or gross revenue data for all LF films. Anecdotally, we hear from theaters and filmmakers that both sets of numbers were down in 2000 compared to previous years, but the details are not publicly available. Although distributors report the grosses of certain LF films, these are not representative of the whole market: for the most part distributors choose to report only on those films that they expect will perform well. We have not been able to draw any valid inferences about global industry trends from our analysis of the reported grosses.

So the picture that emerges from examination of the bookings data is of a fairly calm industry, little changed from the previous years. This is belied by the well known troubles the commercial exhibition industry in North America has undergone since last summer and the shock waves those problems have sent through Imax Corporation and the rest of the LF industry.

But on the other hand, the stable bookings picture also reminds us that the recent difficulties do not spell the end of the world: people are still going to the movies—LF and conventional—and even though some imprudent decisions may have been made, the business will continue. Shaken up a bit, perhaps, but still moving ahead. Let's look at the numbers.

Booking lengths stabilize

The most startling fact we reported in the previous two Yearbooks was the steep decline in average booking length. Increased film production, combined with a rise in the number of LF theaters with new competing theaters in their markets, led to dramatic reductions in bookings lengths. Between 1997 and 1998 the average booking shrank 52 days (17.3%), from 301 days to 249. In 1999 the average dropped again, by 36 days to 213 days, a 14.5% drop. However, last year the average stayed virtually steady, at 211 days. Although it might seem that 211 days—seven months—is much longer than the three- or four-month bookings that are now common, this number generally reflects the full contract period for the booking. In that time, the film may move from a majority of the theater's schedule—as the “A” title—to the “B” position, and eventually to weekends or evenings only. (See the note at the end of this article for an explanation of the statistical methods used to calculate these figures.)

Average booking length
Bookings started in	Average length	% change	Bookings counted
1997	301 days		287
1998	249 days	-17.3%	443
1999	213 days	-14.5%	508
2001	211 days	-0.9%	671

The same competitive forces that shortened bookings also pushed theaters to show more films (which in turn had the effect of shortening booking lengths further). The number of films run by the average theater in the course of the year grew steadily between 1997 and 1999, but dropped last year, as shown in this table:

Average films per theater
Year	Films	Theaters counted
1997	4.3	181
1998	4.9	230
1999	5.2	271
2000	4.9	292

Whereas in 1999 12% of theaters showed ten or more films, last year only 9% (26 out of 292) did so. Table 1 at the right shows those theaters that ran at least five shows in 2000.

Still a buyer's market

In the early days of the LF industry, a year might have seen only one or two new releases, but theaters today have literally dozens of titles to choose from, new and classic. This has put exhibitors in the driver's seat and kept lease rates lower than filmmakers would like. Theater managers and distributors contacted for this article confirm that lease rates have remained steady for the past several years. Despite the examples of Fantasia/2000, for which Disney commanded 50% of the gross, and Michael Jordan to the Max and Haunted

Castle, which struck similar deals, institutional theaters continue to pay between US$0.60 and $0.80 per head, which is roughly equivalent to the 20–25% of gross that commercial theaters pay. The rate for 3D is higher: around 30–35%. Museums, which generally have numerous combination ticket options (exhibits plus film) and member discounts, pay on a per-head basis to avoid the confusion of trying to determine a “gross” income figure on multi-tiered admissions.

The problem of print fees

A long-time convention of most LF lease deals that may be changing is the print fee. Distributors have traditionally required exhibitors to pay in advance for the full cost of new 15/70 prints—typically between $20,000 and $25,000, double that for 3D. When bookings were eight or twelve months long the print fee made sense, because by the end of the run the print would usually be too scratched and worn to be reused. Photogarding, a protective and rejuvenating treatment introduced in the mid-eighties, dramatically increased print life. Combined with the shorter runs of the late nineties, this meant that two, three, or more theaters might now use a single print.

Theaters began to grumble that distributors were charging them the full cost of prints that they didn't get to own, and then turning around and collecting another print fee from the next theater. Although theaters had built print fees into their budgets, as they began booking more films per year, they were often hard pressed to come up with the hundreds of thousands of dollars in print fees required to book five or ten films.

The situation was even worse for commercial operators with multiple 3D theaters. Even in the best of times, few could afford to open a 3D feature simultaneously at all five or six of their theaters with up-front print fees of $50,000 each. Most chains premiere a new film on half their screens, and after a few months ship the prints to the remaining theaters.

There are signs that the print fee is, if not disappearing, at least becoming slightly less ubiquitous. Fantasia, Michael Jordan, and Haunted Castle all included a free print in return for their higher lease fees. Some theaters have expressed a willingness to pay a higher percentage or per-head rate in exchange for a free print, and distributors are listening. Note also that Imax recently announced its intent to try to reduce print fees by 50% (see LF Examiner, April 2001).

New production continues

Although the downturn of the last year may ultimately slow production of new films, there are few signs that filmmakers' competition for screen time will ease substantially in the next few years. All of the major LF production companies have films actively shooting and others in development. And LFX hears regularly from filmmakers about to start on their first LF project. The evergreen nature of many giant-screen films means that the inventory of available films keeps growing: although a dozen or more new films are released each year, fewer drop out of circulation. In 1997, 81 different titles were shown in the world's LF theaters; by 2000 that number was 104. In the same period, 42 new features opened, meaning that only 17 titles fell out of active distribution.

These figures are counts of distinct theaters, and do not include return engagements of a film to the same theater. All other bookings counts shown in this issue include such re-bookings.

Looking at the performance of LF distributors shown in Table 3, we see few changes from previous years. Not surprisingly, Imax remains dominant, with twice as many active films and nearly twice as many bookings as its nearest competitor, MacGillivray Freeman Films. Once again, Destination Cinema comes in third, mostly on the strength of Mysteries of Egypt. The Houston Museum of Natural Science edged out Sony Pictures Classics Large Format for the fourth spot in the bookings count.

Reporting grosses

More LF films than ever are showing up on the weekly box office reports of the trade publications (and in LFX's monthly Index). Distributors reported the grosses of 16 films in 1999. In 2000 the total rose to 21. It clearly helped the LF industry's reputation to be seen in the charts of Variety and Hollywood Reporter next to (and sometimes beating) mainstream films such as Star Wars Episode 1, The Patriot, and Gladiator.

However, as we have pointed out previously, such reporting is a double-edged sword. While raising the profile of LF films, it also overstates their success to people not familiar with the unusual circumstances and practices of our industry. First, it is not a random representative selection of all LF films. Distributors go to the trouble to collect and report weekly data because they believe it will boost their film's reputation and increase business. For the most part they do not report on films that are not doing well.

Secondly, the bare gross figure does not mean the same in the LF world as it does in the conventional cinema industry. Many people seem to have assumed, for instance, that the lion's share of the $100-million-plus that Everest has grossed went to MacGillivray Freeman, not realizing that the theaters kept about 75% of that total. This has led people to jump into LF production with unrealistic expectations of their chances for financial success.

As a result, at least two distributors, MacGillivray Freeman and nWave Pictures, have chosen not to continue reporting grosses. They say they do not believe it benefits the industry in the long run.

As a journalistic enterprise, LF Examiner believes that, as a rule, more information is better than less, but also recognizes the flaws inherent in weekly reporting of grosses. Last year we proposed a monthly system for reporting attendance as a simpler and more relevant measure of the LF industry than weekly grosses. Only two distributors consistently provided these data: XLargo, distributor of Water and Man (new version), and Extreme Productions. We present their accumulated data in Table 4, and again call on distributors to participate in this system. A simple reporting form is available on request. (We are also in the process of developing a Web-based system for online reporting of bookings and other data.)

the industry is going through a period of flux and uncertainty. The financial troubles of commercial exhibitors and of leading companies such as Imax and Iwerks are unsettling and affect nearly everyone in the LF business. The introduction of digital cinema, first to conventional exhibitors, then to LF theaters, will create even more upheaval, and set hard decisions—digital or film?—before people planning to build theaters in the next five or ten years.

However, the existing 300+ LF theaters worldwide, and the 100 more that can be expected in the next couple of years, represent a substantial market that will not vanish overnight. They will continue to need new and exciting films, and although filmmakers may have some competition, as the creative force of our industry they can be expected to rise to the challenge.

Note

The average booking lengths referred to in this article were calculated by combining contiguous A, B, and E listings (which are shown as separate entries in our regular bookings lists) and excluding from the count

- Bookings that started before the year being averaged;
- Films for which we did not have precise start and end dates;
- Film festival screenings;

- School bookings (films shown irregularly to school groups, but which are not on the regular public schedule);
- Certain destination films with extremely long runs at their home theaters;
- Bookings in theaters that opened after Jan. 1, 2000.

This left sets of 287 records for 1997, 443 records for 1998, 508 records for 1999, and 401 records for 2000 from which we calculated the average booking lengths in days, based on the starting date of the booking.

Acknowledgements

LF Examiner's bookings data would be substantially less complete without the nearly universal cooperation of the LF industry's distributors. I would like to extend special thanks to my contacts at the distributors who cheerfully and promptly supply me with data, occasionally, when I'm running behind schedule, on very short notice.

Bookings: 2000 by Film

1,506 bookings of 104 films in 290 theaters

The data on the following pages are not warranted to be comprehensive or accurate in every detail, despite our best efforts to make them so. They have been compiled from surveys of LF theaters, distributors, the world wide web, and other sources.

We will make every effort to improve the thoroughness, accuracy, and usefulness of these data. If your theater or film is not shown here, please get in touch with us to update our listings.

Where a date is not shown, it means that no date was provided by the source or, in the case of a closing date, that no date has been set, or that the run is indefinite.

We recently elected to eliminate the Status column from these tables. This data point is changing too quickly, and thus has become impractical to attempt to collect and present accurately.

The key to film abbreviations is on page 20.
